

John Box FCIEEM FCIWEM FLS CEcol CEnv John has many years of experience as an ecologist and environmental manager. He has worked for the Freshwater Biological Association, the University of Sydney, Telford Development Corporation, Natural England, Wardell Armstrong (minerals & mining consultants) and Atkins (international engineering & environmental consultants) where he was a Technical Director in the Environment business. He has been involved with many voluntary organisations and was President of the Chartered Institute of Ecology and Environmental Management. John has particular experience of habitat creation & restoration, blue & green infrastructure, biodiversity offsetting and natural capital & ecosystem services. Relevant contributions include a chapter on urban greenspace in The Routledge Handbook of Urban Ecology (2011) and a chapter on building urban biodiversity using financial incentives, regulation and targets in Urban Ecology (2011, OUP). He originated with Carolyn Harrison in 1993 the idea of standards for the provision of accessible natural greenspace in urban areas that have been formalised as the Natural England Access to Natural Greenspace Standards.