

Dr Elizabeth Rollinson, Executive Secretary of The Linnean Society of London, representing the Society which embraces the entire sweep of the natural world, encompassing science, history and art. As the world's oldest active biological society, the Linnean Society is an essential forum and meeting point for those interested in the natural world. The Society holds regular public lectures and events, publishes three peer-reviewed journals, and promotes the study of the natural world with several educational initiatives. The Society is home to a world famous library and collection of natural history specimens. The Society's Fellows have a considerable range of biological expertise that can be harnessed to inform and advise on scientific and public policy issues.
